

Globe-Wernicke

A BOOKCASE in the house is more than one more piece of furniture. It is the rallying point of home culture, the children's treasure chest, the store of big sister's romance, brother Bob's spinner of yarns and the genial companion and philosophic friend of the elder members of the family. It is the Heart of the Home. And if it is a Globe-Wernicke Sectional Bookcase it grows as the book collection grows, section being added to section as needed. Books never overflow and clutter up tables or open shelves, there to gather dust, grow dog-eared or be damaged otherwise. Globe-Wernicke patented features insure the perfect protection of books—they exclude dust and excessive moisture, and prevent sticking, binding, warping, sagging or mechanical difficulties of any sort whatever.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Beckman, who have been passing the summer at the Mount Pleasant house in the White mountains, arrived in the city last evening for a visit of several weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Miers of Keith avenue. Later in the fall they will go to St. Augustine, Fla., for the winter.

"Araby," Irving Berlin's latest; "Picture Me Down Home in Tennessee," "I've Been Floating Down the Old Green River," and "My Old Kentucky Home" are the bouquet of songs which May Irwin will sing when she brings the original New York cast and production of her new comedy, "33 Washington Square," to the opera house Monday, Oct. 9—adv.

A Barre boy, Edward Bosworth, was the winner of the prize under class 5 at the school children's exhibition, held at Montpelier last week, which entitles him to attend the boys' and girls' industrial exhibition at Burlington one day, free of expense to himself. The Burlington exhibition will be held from Oct. 10 to 13. The winner is the son of Mrs. George Bosworth of Perry street, is 11 years of age and attends the seventh grade at the Lincoln school.

Three tributaries merge in a single stream of surplus water that gathers its supply from as many public fountains in and around City square. Flowing most anywhere outside the city limits one would set it down for an attractive little rivulet, but its presence at the junction of three streets in the heart of the business section has suggested to pedestrians a query as to whether someone's carelessness is not responsible for the unsightly puddles of water created by the leaks. The stream rises in the City square fountain and gathers to its boundaries more water from a leakage in the public drinking fountain at the corner of the park. A final feeder for the rivulet is furnished undoubtedly by a leak in the watering fountain and dog trough.

Heavy registration Saturday and Monday evenings indicate that the 1916-17 enrollment at the Barre evening drawing school in the Mathewson building will exceed the aggregate of any other year since the school was established. Many of the high school students are to take advantage of the courses this year and the enrollment also includes a large number of young men who are employed in the granite industry. Regular sessions will begin this evening and hereafter the elementary courses will be given on alternate evenings, either Tuesday and Thursday, or Wednesday and Friday. W. A. Murray and William Duff, now members of the faculty, are to assume their duties to-night.

Chief Sinclair of the police force is in receipt of a telegram from Chief G. F. McDermott of the Woburn, Mass., police department asking for information concerning the parents or other relatives of three boys who are detained in that city on vagrancy charges. Two brothers, John Anderson and Fred Anderson, give their ages as 15 and 13 years, respectively, and the third member of the tramping trio is James Craig, aged 10. When questioned by the Woburn police the boys said they left their home in Groton a month ago and had been on the road almost continuously until detained in Woburn. Chief McDermott is anxious to locate those people who are expected to be interested in the whereabouts of the boys. Chief Sinclair, conferring by telephone with the authorities in Groton, learns that no boys are missing in that vicinity and that the names of the Andersons and the Craigs are unknown Groton.
